Cuttlefish, Submarine Launched To-day,

STICKS ON THE WAYS

MISHAP MARS CHRISTENING OF NEW BOAT

8-Year-Old Sponsor, Eleanor Dow, Performs Her Part Without Hitch.

NOTED GUESTS PRESENT

Special to the Boston American.

QUINCY, Sept. 1.—The new submarine boat Cuttlefish, launched from the yards of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to-day, stuck on the ways just as it reached water. The tug Confidence is now engaged in an attempt to pull the craft into the river.

The stern of the boat is submerged for a few feet, and the bow is thrown at an angle in the air. The boat is not damaged.

At 11:30 o'clock, after two hours' hard tugging and pulling, the tug Confidence dragged the new submarine into deep water. She lies in the Fore river channel, four feet of her curved steel top showing above the water. Workmen will begin at once completing the vessel and installing her interior fittings and armament.

Miss Eleanor Gow, the eight-year-old girl who christened the queer craft, did her part without a hitch. Standing on the platform, surrounded by three of her little friends and with scores of guests in the background, she pulled the string which released the bottle of wine. As the bottle crashed against the side of the craft she shouted in a clear voice:

"I christen thee Cuttlefish."

Then the boat shot down the ways until near the end and stopped short.

The little girls, who are about the same age as Miss Gow, and who were sister sponsors for the new boat, are Josephine Smith, daughter of Lieutenant Smith; Genevieve Tardy, daughter of Lieutenant Tardy, and Georgiana McGowan.

Youngest of Sponsors.

Among the prominent guests who occupied seats on the platform were Mrs. Gow, wife of Commander Gow, Mrs. Tyler, wife of Commander Tyler, Mrs. Smith, wife of Superintendent Smith, Mrs. Rachel Walker, Mrs. John Denman, Mrs. J. J. Crane and Mrs. L. Y. Spear.

Eleanor Gow, daughter of Commander John L. Gow of the United States Navy, is one of the youngest girls who has ever been called upon to christen a warship.

It has long been a naval custom to have young unmarried women preside at launching. When a warship was to be given to the sea, the sponsor as a rule, was a resident of the city or State for which the cruiser or battleship was named. But in the instance of the Cuttlefish, which takes its name from a marine monster which like a torpedo boat lurks in sea depths, there is no reason for following this precedent.

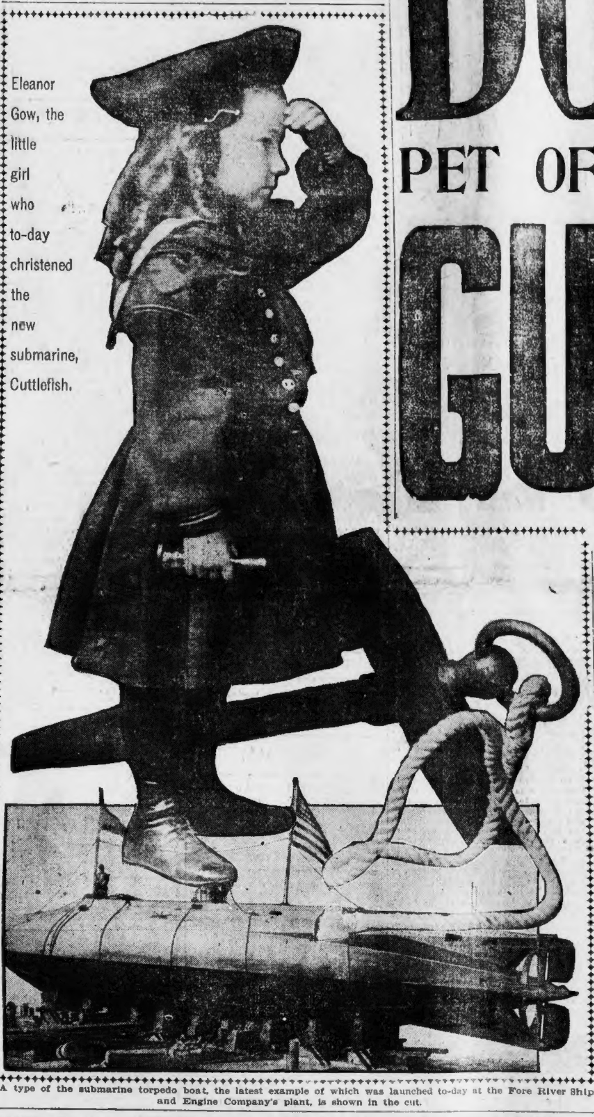
Full of Enthusiasm.

The child was enthusiastic over the feat she was to perform. It is an honor eagerly sought by society belles, and in many instances has provoked embarrassing rivalry. But nobody begrudged this little girl, "a daughter of the navy," the privilege of giving its name to a craft which may yet make history.

The Cuttlefish will have preliminary trials within two or three weeks, and then official trials will subject her to the rigid U. S. Government tests.

Submarine warships are a comparatively new feature in the United States navy, but are very common in Europe. It calls for courage to man them, for English and French craft of this type have been known to drown all hands when machinery would not work. President Roosevelt astonished the world by making the descent in one. He is the only head of a nation who ever so risked his life.

The crews of submarine craft are very superstitious and great believers in luck. They know that they are continually risking life in peace as well as war. It is an old sea superstition that the luck of the girl who christens a vessel is transmitted to it. Therefore, sailors delight in having youth and innocence bestow the ship's name.



Eleanor Gow, the little girl who to-day christened the new submarine, Cuttlefish.

A type of the submarine torpedo boat, the latest example of which was launched to-day at the Fore River Ship and Engine Company's plant, is shown in the cut.

All Cuba Is Now in Throes of Revolution;

REBELS MENACE 5 CITIES

Fighting at Cardenas and 3,000 Insurgents Are Near Cienfuegos.

HAVANA, Sept. 1.—With battles imminent on every hand, and with the rural guards and artillery engaged in quelling small uprisings, government officials are to-day more alarmed than at any time since the rebels took up arms. There is only one peaceable province in the country, Puerto Principe.

Cardenas, hitherto a peaceable city, is now engaged in conflict. Bands of roving insurgents are swarming about the place. Several minor engagements took place there yesterday, when the police and rural guards clashed with the rebels. No one is reported killed, but neither side can claim a victory. The insurgents, however, still harass the city from all sides.

Over 3,00 armed insurgents are hovering about Cienfuegos. There has been no open fighting there as yet, but the city is in fear. Should the rebels come in massed battle the city would fall from lack of sufficient defence.

SPREADING LIKE FIRE.

In and about Santiago there are several encampments of rebels, estimated at about 2,500 men, engaged in pillaging the outlying districts in spite of the government guards. There has been scattered fighting, but to what extent cannot be learned. The government will not tell.

Private reports say the uprising there is spreading like fire. It is freely stated that the worst blow to the Palma government would be to lose to the rebels in eastern Cuba.

Control Every Town in Santa Clara and Are Pillaging Near Santiago.

Rebels now control every town in Santa Clara province. Trains are being held up and looted, storehouses ransacked and the properties of natives and foreigners pillaged.

Trinidad is also surrounded by bands of rebels. The Cuban Central Railway trains are held up almost at will, and passengers are robbed. The railway has announced

DOCTOR

PET OF SOCIETY DECLARED

GUILTY OF GIRL'S DEATH

Dramatic Scene in Bangor Court Room as Crowd of Women Hear Doom of Former Social Favorite—Dr. Briggs Near Collapse.

Special to the Boston American.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 1.—Eyes downcast and with faltering steps, Dr. William H. H. Briggs, found guilty to-day of manslaughter in causing the death of Miss Maud B. Taggett, passed from the courthouse to the jail.

A group of men and women, socially prominent, all of the friends of the convicted physician, watched his unsteady journey. Not a word was said, but from many of them sympathy seemed to be extended.

He will be sentenced next week. His wife, who has stood by him faithfully, and his friends, will exhaust every legal means to aid him.

IS NEAR COLLAPSE.

Dr. Briggs was brought into court when it opened, and his haggard face showed that he had not slept during the final hours of his ordeal. He is on the verge of a collapse, his friends believe.

"Mr. Foreman," inquired Clerk of Courts Sweet, "have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," answered the foreman.

"Is the prisoner guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty of manslaughter," said the foreman.

WOMEN SOB IN COURT.

A moment's silence followed, then hysterical sobs were heard and many of the proudest and most fashionable women in this city bowed their heads and wept.

Dr. Briggs, ghastly pale and haggard, gave no outward sign of his emotion, save the constant clasping and unclasping of his hands.

"We will take recess," said Judge Powers of the Superior Judicial Court, in which the fashionable doctor's trial had been conducted.

Near the prisoner's chair was clustered a little group composed of his wife and a few friends and relatives. Mrs. Briggs gave no sign of the pain she must have felt, but gazed anxiously at her husband as though fearing the effect upon him.

The crowd in the courtroom surged out. Dr. Briggs, still maintaining his composure by a mighty effort, followed a deputy sheriff from the room. He had not once spoken throughout the ordeal.

At the foot of the stairway leading from the court house to the jail a group of elegantly-gowned women, many prominent in society, and a score of physicians, all eminent in their profession, waited for Dr. Briggs to pass. They could not speak to him, but they extended silent sympathy as he passed by. It is probable that sentence will be imposed later in the day.

The jury took the case at 6:45 last night. Three hours later it returned for instruction, and early in the morning, there being no return from the jury room, the court adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

For over six hours Dr. Briggs waited in the court room last night, half hoping and yet fearing the return of the jurors. He was comforted all that time by Mrs. Briggs and a group of friends and relatives. All were unnerved, and the women hid their faces and wept without restraint.

MISSING RICH MAN ON BLACKWELL'S ISLAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—David B. McIlwaine, a wealthy New York representative of the Pittsburg Shovel Company, was found by his daughter occupying a free cot in the city hospital on Blackwell's Island last night. Mr. McIlwaine was knocked down by an automobile at Broadway and Grand street, and regained consciousness in Bellevue Hospital.

WARSAW IS SWEPT BY POLICE; 2,000 ARRESTS

OFFICERS WHIP PRISONERS AND PERPETRATE OTHER CRUELTIES.

WARSAW, Russian Poland, Sept. 1.—Over 2,000 arrests were made during last night's police sweep of this city. Many complaints have been made by the prisoners of police brutality, including the beating of persons arrested, with whips.

HARVARD'S GREAT ROW DAZES ENGLISHMEN

CRIMSON CREW GOES OVER THE COURSE IN 18:50, THREE SECONDS BEHIND RECORD.

PUTNEY, England, Sept. 1.—In a practice spin over the entire course of its future race with Cambridge, the Harvard crew negotiated the distance this morning in 18 minutes and 50 seconds, which is just three seconds slower than the record.

This display of excellent form on the part of the Americans has utterly disconcerted English racing experts and has caused a complete change of feeling in regard to the chances of the two crews.

From Putney to Mortlake the crew pulled in magnificent form, averaging thirty-three strokes to the minute.

The men finished fresh and from every outward appearance could have done better if they had been pushed.

Englishmen who two weeks ago were betting heavily on Cambridge have now declined to offer any more bets until they get a better line of Harvard's capabilities. The experts admit they are all at sea, and are giving more attention to the Harvard crew just now than to any aggregation of rowing men which has appeared here in a long time.

Americans in this country are jubilant as a result of Harvard's excellent showing to-day, and they are now confident that their fellow countrymen will defeat Cambridge.

KNIGHT TEMPLARS HERE.

The Hugh de Payens Commandery No. 30, Knight Templars, of Buffalo, will arrive in Boston at 8:43 to-day. The day will be spent in sightseeing. The party will attend the conclave of the grand commandery September 3, 4, 5 in Albany.

DOLAN TACKLES NEW JOB IN MAYOR'S OFFICE

Such a Hydra-Headed Position It Is, but Appointee Is Fearless.

MUST WATCH THAT AUTO

Arthur W. Dolan begins to-day his hydra-headed job as private secretary to Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. He gets $4,000 a year at it, and it is conceded that he will earn every cent. In addition to holding down the official title, Secretary Arthur will have to attend to various real duties that require unusual energy and tact.

He will have to keep tabs on the official automobile which the city owns and the Mayor uses. Where the mayor is, there will the auto be also. At present the Mayor is basking in the sun of Old Orchard Beach. So the city auto is at Old Orchard. It's up to Secretary Arthur to see that the auto is duly licensed, tagged and numbered, wherever it may be sent.

And So Many Letters.

Secretary Arthur must keep the Mayor's famous letter file. This is no light task. When the Mayor wishes it understood that he has written a letter which he hasn't (witness the electric light arbitration), then the clever secretary must square it with the file and be able to prove that the letter was written and recorded three weeks before.

Then there's the would-be contractors. The secretary will see them every day, keep them from bothering the Mayor, and explain to them that they are going to get theirs—not yet, but soon.

Secretary Arthur, it is needless to say, must display a literary style, neat, but not gaudy. He will have to dope out advertisements for the Fitzgerald Automatic Advertising Agency, which booms Fitzgerald under the disguise of booming Boston.

It's a Pretty Hard Job.

Another literary field for Secretary Arthur will be composing articles for that periodical, The Republic, which the Mayor uses to mould public opinion and slam the graceless reporters who make fun of his administration.

It's a pretty hard job at the best, this being private secretary to a Mayor of Boston. And, when it is Mayor Fitzgerald, with the campaign coming on and with new questions arising every minute, the job assumes monumental proportions.

There is no doubt in the minds of the political experts that the Mayor has picked a clever secretary. Mr. Dolan has made his mark in politics as an able and alert young man. Seven years ago he was elected to the Common Council from Charlestown and stayed in office six years. During the last four he was president of the Council, ruling that turbulent body with a firm and heavy hand.

Takes Dolan Out of Race.

The late Mayor Collins thought a great deal of Mr. Dolan and persuaded him to stay in the Council for two years after Mr. Dolan wanted to run for the upper branch.

Mr. Dolan was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State senator in the Second Suffolk district and, from all appearances would have put up a stiff fight for the place. His appointment as mayor's secretary takes him out of the senatorial contest, and that same circumstance may partly explain why the mayor selected him. "Billy" Taylor will undoubtedly be a candidate for re-election. The politicians say that getting Dolan out of Taylor's way is a consideration of some account.

ANYONE KNOW JOHN NELSEN?

The police, hospital authorities and overseers of the poor are trying to find relatives of John Nelsen, aged thirty-five, of No. 780 Washington street, East Weymouth, who died in the Emergency Hospital to-day from cerebral hemorrhage.

He was picked up in the down-town district yesterday, suffering from exhaustion. The body lies in the Lewis Jones morgue on Lagrange street, and will be held ten days for identification, and unless claimed will be buried in Potter's Field.

Nelsen said he was acquainted with Joseph Moran, No. 50 School street, but Moran says he does not know him.

BADLY BURNED BY GASOLINE

While fixing some "flying" horses on a "mery go-round," on Mystic avenue in Medford, early to-day, Arthur Fitzgerald, aged thirty-four, of No. 107 Tremont street, Cambridge, was badly burned by a gasoline stove exploding and setting fire to his clothes.

His cries attracted neighbors who telephoned for the ambulance, after extinguishing the flames, and he was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he is in a serious condition.

CITY HAS 1,500 MORE VOTERS

Up to date Boston has over 1,500 more voters than it had last year.

So far the supplementary voting list, which will be closed to-night, has 617 ne wnames on it. There were 195,446 names o nthe regular list, making a total to-day of 196,063. Last year there was a total of 194,547 voters on both regular and supplementary lists.

The supplementary listing closes at midnight to-night. But, by special arrangement permitted by Police Commissioner O'Meara a man may get on the list after to-night by going to headquarters and giving reasonable explanation for not being on the list already. This extra grace extends to September 1, after which the listing will be closed finally.

DUBLIN COUNTY FOLK WILL MEET

A meeting of the Dublin County Association of Boston will be held to-morrow night in the hall, No. 694 Washington street, at 8 o'clock. All natives of Dublin and their children are invited to attend.

JUVENILE COURT OPENS BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

AT THE BAR OF THE JUVENILE COURT—HARVEY H. BAKER, JUDGE

Mothers Present as Youngsters Appear Before Judge Baker.

First Session of New Tribunal for Trial of Youthful Offenders.

The new Juvenile Court, Judge Harvey H. Baker presiding, opened its session to-day in the Pemberton Square Court House. Behind closed doors, with none but those charged with offences and their mothers, fathers and counsel present, several youngsters had their transgressions weighed in the balance of justice. Judge Baker heard their stories, gave advice where needed and imposed punishment where punishment seemed the only advisable course.

There were present in the courtroom a score or more of boys and girls, and seated about the judge's bench were their parents. Some of the latter came to plead for their children, while others sought the court to tell the judge that they thought restriction in an industrial school was the best thing for their wayward ones.

Opening of a New Era.

With the opening of the Juvenile Court a new era dawns for children law breakers in Boston.

Under the new law, which went into effect to-day, all juvenile offenders will be wards of the court—not criminals. This means that no boy or girl under fourteen can be locked up in jail in default of bail or pending examination. They will be cared for by an officer of the State Board of Charities.

Best of all, a special justice of the Juvenile Court, Judge Harvey Baker, a man who thoroughly understands children, appreciates them and sympathizes with them, is to weigh and judge all the childish misdemeanors.

Judge Baker will be to Boston what Judge Lindsey is to Denver. He is to be the friend and protector of the bad boys or girls who are victims of demoralizing environment.

Will Find Sympathy.

The new court room is just beneath the stairway from Somerset street. It is far removed from the motely crowd of criminals who fill the court every day.

Already this tiny court, with the miniature judge's bench facing a row of small chairs, has been called the "court of good cheer."

Children crave sympathy and appreciation.

The bad boy or girl craves it even more than the fortunate ones who are protected in good homes.

Law-breaking children feel sorrow and joy keenly.

Hope and encouragement will often set them in new paths, leading to high ideals.

All this and more will the new juvenile court grant to wayward and misguided Boston girls and boys.

Probation officers are to be appointed. Upon them falls an immense responsibility. For the present, Mrs. Rose Kronkyn, who, for years, has dealt with children of the courts, will act as the probation officer.

Understands Children.

After years of experience she has learned to see beyond the veil of childish indifference. She can read remorse tugging at little hearts even when there is no superficial evidence. She makes a rigorous investigation of each case and always knows just what is helpful for each girl or boy.

Charles N. M. Williams acts as clerk of the juvenile court and the assistant justices are Messrs. Leverend and Rubenstein.

FRYEBURG FIRE LOSS $100,000

Special to the Boston American.

FRYEBURG, Me., Sept. 1.—Fire, which started in the Oxford Hotel yesterday, consumed the greater part of the business section of this town, and caused losses estimated to amount to $100,000, with insurance of $50,000. The buildings totally destroyed were the Oxford Hotel, a three-story structure, with accommodations for 250; a two-story unoccupied hotel known as the Fryeburg House, Mrs. M. B. Barker's millinery store, C. A. Abbott's blacksmith shop, Kelley's livery stable, Ladd's drug store and residence, the post office, the telephone exchange, the residences of Charles Roberts, T. L. Leastman, Mrs. Eben Weeks, E. C. Weston, H. G. Freeman, S. W. Fife, Miss M. E. Bradley, Woodman Gray, Nathaniel Walker, A. H. Evans, Lyman Charles and Michael Grady and four untenanted houses.

STRONG INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE IN LEOMINSTER

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENTS FORM VIGOROUS BRANCH OF THE STATE ORGANIZATION.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., Sept. 1.—Under the most encouraging circumstances a branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts was organized at the Leominster Hotel Thursday. Judging from the interest displayed in the movement by the citizens of this town, the new branch will be one of the sturdiest of those subordinate organizations that have enrolled themselves in affiliation with the Massachusetts State League.

"I am heart and soul in favor of this movement in behalf of the citizens," said Secretary William L. Farrell at the opening of the meeting. "I have long believed that the people should come together in an organization like the Independence League and anything that I can do to further its success and increase its membership in this locality, I am willing to do. There are many in this place who agree with me and I am sure that they will co-operate with us until the League becomes a power for good government in this community."

There was a representative gathering of citizens and they were keenly interested in the objects of the League. They voted to form a permanent organization and elected provisional officers as follows: President, John Maguire. Secretary, William L. Farrell.

John Maguire, who was elected president of the new league, is one of the foremost business men of Leominster. The fact that he consented to accept the office guarantees the complete success of the organization. He frankly admitted that his business affairs consumed the greater part of his time, but so thoroughly imbued was he with the principles of the league that he felt it his duty to make some sacrifice in its behalf.

Among others who expressed deep interest in the meeting and its objects were Louis M. Barslow and John May. They endorsed the sentiments of president Maguire and Secretary Farrell.

William N. Osgood, the State president of the league was present. He congratulated the Leominster citizens on the spirit which they had shown in forming the league and predicted its rapid growth.

At the close of the meeting arrangements were made for holding a monster rally in the near future.

LEAGUE STARTS IN GARDNER IN WHIRL OF ENTHUSIASM

GARDNER, Sept. 1.—Gardner, one of the most enterprising towns in the State, showed last night that it is thoroughly alive to present political conditions and does not propose to be behind in the grand uprising of the citizens for self-government.

An Independence League was formed here last night by a large number of independent and influential citizens representing every shade of political opinion. Many of them declared that they were tired of boss and machine rule and were glad to join a movement which meant popular government in fact.

Leander C. Lynde, a highly respected citizen of Gardner, formerly a Republican was made a member of the League. He heartily endorsed the principles of the new organization. He said they were similar to those advocated by him for a long time, and for which he had fought in season and out of season. He was strongly opposed to the boss dictation of nominations.

Many Like Him.

He asserted that there were many in both parties in Gardner who could be depended on to become active workers in the Independence League. For years he had refused to take any interest in politics but from now on he was determined to do all in his power to destroy the baneful influence of cliques and bosses.

John F. Devin gave expression to similar views, and said he most earnestly subscribed to the general purposes of the new organization. Mr. Devin is a lawyer who has given considerable study to public questions, and unhesitatingly enrolled himself as a member and promised to secure many others.

The following provisional officers were chosen: President, Prime Robichaud; secretary, James L. Cusick; executive committee, Leander C. Lynde, Patrick J. Foley, Charles L. Piper.

Large Membership Assured.

William N. Osgood of the State organization was present and explained the objects of the league.

It was decided to make an energetic effort to build up a large membership and to hold frequent meetings and rallies.

There is every indication that the local league will soon have upon its membership roll the names of many wage-earners and business men. The independent spirit is aroused in Gardner and permeates the ranks of both Republicans and Democrats. The new organization is bound to give a good account of itself in the near future.

CUBAN REBELS NOW MENACING 5 CITIES

that it will not be responsible for the safety of passengers or freight.

The government is practically powerless to protect the property of Americans, Cubans or other foreigners. The rural guards and police are inadequate to the situation.

In the province of Pinar del Rio, and not far from that city, Guerra and his rebel band is encamped in the wilderness.

The government troops under Colonel Avalos have not yet come up with Guerra, and there is no present likelihood of their doing so. There are thousands of confusing mountain trains with which the insurgents are familiar, and from which Guerra's sharpshooters can pick off the government troops.

The government has no cavalry in Pinar del Rio, and its only real soldiers are the artillerymen, but as they are afoot they cannot cope with the mounted veterans on the insurgent side.

Americans who come to the legation to ask for the protection of their property are answered by an immediate call on the government of Cuba, which promises to do the best it can for them. Charge d'Affaires Sleeper advises all such callers to file their complaints in the local courts and forward copies of the papers to the legation.

To add to the general apprehension, the American Protestant missionaries of Havana, who are in general charge of the field, say that reports from missionaries outside of Havana are practically unanimous in stating that the insurrection is sweeping all the country districts in the western half of the island.

REBELS RAID BIG BOSTON PROPERTY

Thomas Atkins, the Boston sugar magnate, president of the Trinidad Sugar Company, which has a local office at No. 10 Broad street, room 424, has notified the State Department at Washington that a band of insurgents had raided its plantation and carried off live stock. The company asks that the government take steps to have the Cuban government protect the company's property in future. The State Department at once advised Charge d'Affaires Sleeper in Havana of the outrage.

This is the third instance since the outbreak of the insurrection of sugar plantations belonging to Americans being raided by insurgents.

The report that the Cuban insurgents had raided El Candido plantation in Santa Clara province, Cuba, and had driven off the cattle, is taken very calmly by I. Kaffenburgh of I. Kaffenburgh & Sons of No. 88 Broad street, the proprietors of the plantation. Mr. Kaffenburgh says that the cattle, to the number of 200 or so, were all that the insurgents could possibly have found to loot, as the season's crop of tobacco was all harvested and stored in Cienfuegos.

Mr. Kaffenburgh has no doubt of the correctness of the report of the raid. Regarding the insurrection he said:

"It is, of course, an unfortunate thing for business there, as capital will be deterred from going to Cuba, and will unsettle conditions that will take a long time to cure. We have a breathing spell till November, when the planting season opens again. If we are short of cattle then we can't plow and the season is spoiled. If the insurrection continues we can hardly venture to renew our herd of cattle for new bands to loot, and business must stop until the trouble is over.

TRIED TO PAWN CITY'S BADGE

Roland S. Dow, "no home," is under arrest, charged with lese majeste in trying to pawn a Common Councilman's badge. The techinal charge is larceny, but back of that is the graver one of such disrespect to the City of Boston in treating the emblem of councilmanic authority with disrespect.

Inspectors Smith and Burr were making their round of the pawn shops to-day. In a West End place they noticed this man, about 40 years old, trying to pawn something.

The inspectors were horrified to see that the article was the usual neat but not gaudy golden badge, such as the members of the City Government vote for themselves every year.

Dow said he found the badge, but that didn't help him with the inspectors. The badge read "C. P. Mangle, No. 80 Conant street." Mr. Mangle is a contractor and was in the Common Council in 1899. Now he is in Europe.

Mrs. Mangle told the inspectors that her husband lost his badge recently.

AUTUMN RATES ON STEAMSHIP LINE

Autumn excursion rates go into effect next Monday on the Dominion Atlantic Railway line from Boston to all points on its system, also to Halifax and the Southwestern railway. The new rates make a round trip cost only as much as a one-way ticket.

SHIFT IN B. & M. OFFICIALS

Daniel W. Sanborn retired to-day as general superintendent of the Boston & Maine Railroad, after nearly fifty years' service. Mr. Sanborn retires at his own request, and it removes from active service one of the last, if not the last, of the old-time New England railroad officials.

Charles E. Lee, assistant general manager, is promoted to general superintendent, and the office of assistant general manager will be abolished.

Dana J. Flanders, general passenger agent, is made general traffic manager. He is granted leave of absence because of ill-health.

C. M. Burt, formerly assistant general passenger agent, is to resume his connection with the road as general passenger agent, with offices with Mr. Lee at the North Station.

452 PERISHED IN FRISCO DISASTER

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 1.—In all 452 people perished as the result of the disaster of April 18. The local health department so states in a formal report sent to the State Board of Health. Of the victims, 266 were killed by falling walls, 177 perished by fire, seven were shot and two died as the result of ptomaine poisoning in eating "emergency" canned goods of poor quality.

DRAPER WASTES WORK TO OUTWIT FOSS MEN

RECIPROCITY LEADER'S NAME IS IN SECOND PLACE ON NOMINATION PAPERS.

The efforts of the supporters of Eben S. Draper against Eugene N. Foss for the Lieutenant-Governorship to confound the reciprocity men in the filing of nomination papers for delegations to the State convention to-day were wasted.

The Draper men, it is said, hired every vacant room in the Beacon Building where the city headquarters are located and kept an all-night vigil there to be first on hand at six o'clock, the hour set when papers would be first received. Their elaborate preparations, however, to outwit the Foss men were entirely unnecessary, the Foss papers not showing up through inability to fill the delegations in several wards of the city.

Get Second Place.

Although Major Perlie A. Dyer, manager of the tariff reformer's campaign, gave it out that the Foss people were prevented from making any fight for first place on the ballot, through the hiring of all the vacant rooms in the headquarters building by the Draper men, it developed that the real reason no fight was made to be first on hand to-day was that the reciprocity supporters were having hard work filling their delegations in several wards of the city.

The names of the Foss delegations to the Republican State convention will, therefore, have to go on the ballot in second place, first place being awarded to the delegates whose nomination papers are filed first. Manager Dyer of the Foss campaign says that in his opinion first place on the ballot would make a difference of 5 per cent. in the vote for his candidate, but he is confident that with Foss delegations in second place they will carry a majority of the delegations of the wards.

Nomination papers for Draper delegations were filed from all the wards of the city, except Wards 4, 5 and 13, just as soon as Secretary Fred Thissell opened the door of the Republican headquarters in the building, No. 6 Beacon street. These ward tickets were filed before noon. Twenty-two Draper men were in line when the doors were opened bearing the nomination papers from each ward except the two missing Charlestown and the one South Boston ward. Papers from these wards will be filed later.

Draper Men Out Early.

The Draper supporters reached the building before it was closed at 10:30 last night.

In the first few hours of the filing to-day papers for over half the Republican candidates to be voted for at the primaries were filed.

The time for filing papers expires at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, when papers will be opened in the order in which they were filed and in which order they will go on the ballot for the primaries.

How Harry Lehr Looked After Outing of the '400'

This remarkable snapshot was taken for the BOSTON AMERICAN at Rocky Point ,the resort near Providence, where Pembroke Jones entertained the elite of Newport's millionaire colony. The photograph shows Harry Lehr, the amusement purveyor of New York's "400," entering the Jones launch for the return to Newport after the day's outing.

Boston Girl's Voice in Song "Beats the Band" at Play

Bessie Rosa Has a Task at Wonderland, and She Has the Vocal Ability to Do It.

Did you ever hear anybody sing to "beat the band"? The expression, which found its origin in the slangsters' vocabulary, is a common one; but did you ever really hear anyone try to do it?

A few years ago a man named Morphy originated a singing act and for the catchphrase to carry his act along styled himself "The Man Who Sings to Beat the Band." To Morphy due credit is given as the originator of the expression.

But Morphy has a rival and he must look to his laurels. Down at the prolific amusement resort, Wonderland, they have just created a new feature in keeping with the policy adopted when the gates first opened. The managing director has ordained that the public's demand for something new must be recognized, and the appetite of Wonderland visitors has become so keen for real novelties that one is impressed with the idea that Wonderland must have a bunch of men on its staff who don't do anything but work their gray matter about twenty-four hours a day in search of attractions new and original.

And now Wonderland has come to the front with a "Woman Who Sings to Beat the Band."

The woman is Miss Bessie Rosa, a Boston girl, who has been a favorite at one of the local theatres for the past three or four seasons. She is well known in the South End and for a number of years has lived with her mother at No. 15 Dix place.

But it as the "Woman Who Sings to Beat the Band" that petite Miss Rosa is making the triumph of her career down at Wonderland. She began a two weeks' engagement on Monday and from the first she has been one of the stellar attractions of the million-dollar amusement resort. Miss Rosa's voice is singularly fitted for singing with a full band accompaniment and the very novelty of the thing has appealed strongly to the thousands who enjoy the delights of the electric city every day and evening.

Miss Rosa sings Thomas S. Allan's popular waltz song, "Wonderland," and another that is equally popular, "Katie." Both have a swing to them that makes popularity a lasting feature, and Miss Rosa knows how to sing them, too. She is a young woman very good to look upon, barely out of her teens, and has a very graceful personality. She never sang with a full band before, but she says that she likes it and will continue to study and train her voice for such work. "If there is a man who can sing to beat the band, why can't I?" she pertinently inquires.

WALDORF ASTOR AND WIFE VISIT BOSTON

Registered at the Hotel Victoria yesterday were Waldorf Astor, son of William Waldorf Astor of England, accompanied by his bride, formerly Mrs. Nannie Langhorne-Shaw, who came to Boston from Newport yesterday afternoon and remained until the departure of the early evening train for Washington.

The couple were in Newport less than forty-eight hours, when they renewed many old acquaintances. They went to see Mrs. Astor's grandaunt, Miss Zela Gibbes. Mr. and Mrs. Astor are going to visit the Langhorne estate in Virginia after their stay in Washington.

AMATEURS HAVE A WHIRL AT COLUMBIA

Miss Julia Morris of Brookline was easily the star in a lively dancing specialty for amateurs at Columbia Theatre from 10:30 to 12 last night. Louis Evans got second money, with George Russell within hailing distance. Little Elizabeth Haegle was an easy winner in the juvenile class, with the McDonald brothers as the second money-getters. John Riley was the big comedy hit. Some of last year's favorites were on hand, but were not called on, as there was enough new talent on hand to supply a half dozen amateur bills.

BRYAN BACK IN NEW YORK ONCE MORE

"Home Folks" Renew Enthusiasm on Return of Their Leader From Bridgeport.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—William Jennings Bryan is back in New York.

He arrived in the Grand Central station at 10 o'clock from Bridgeport, Ct., where he had made a speech, and afterwards been enetrtained at the home of Senator McNeill. There were few people on hand to greet the Nebraskan wehn he arrived, as there had been no announcement of the train he would take.

But "the home folks" made up for this when the Hotel Victoria was reached. They greeted their neighbor and leader with loud yells of welcome, and made the corridors look like the late hours of Thursday once more.

Mr. Bryan went to his rooms as soon as he could get away from the boisterous Nebraskans, and there was greeted by his wife and daughter.

Mr. Bryan will go to Newark this afternoon where he will make a speech, and later will go to Jersey City, where he will dine at the Cateret Club. After dinner there will be a review of a parade of 10,000 men, and three meetings which Mr. Bryan will address in various parts of the city.

Mr. Bryan was slightly hoarse to-day from his speech-making yesterday in New England, but otherwise the stress of his trip had no ill effect on him. He will be tendered a banquet by the New York newspaper men at Healy's tonight.

MRS. BRYAN SEES DAUGHTER'S PLAY FROM THEATRE BOX

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Mrs. William J. Bryan and her daughter Grace, with several political and personal friends of Mr. Bryan, occupied boxes at Keith & Proctor's Union Square Theatre last night to see the rendition of the playlet written by Mrs. Ruth Leavitt, by Bryan's eldest daughter. Mr. Bryan, because of political engagements in Connecticut, was unable to be present.

The piece occupied about twenty minutes and received a fair amount of applause. At the request of Mrs. Bryan her presence was not previously announced, and the audience did not recognize her.

BOYCOTT LEGAL, SAYS JUSTICE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The rights of labor unions and their sympathizers to call on their friends to withhold patronage from a non-union tradesman were recognized as legal by Justice Stafford in the District Supreme Court here yesterday, dismissing an injunction against the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union, which had been obtained by a baker, who alleged that he was being harassed by means of a boycott.

The court referred to the existence of a combination, but said that its purpose was not divulged. "Therefore," he said, "no other rational explanation of the conduct of the defendants can be found than that they have combined to demonstrate to the baker that he cannot conduct a profitable business with non-union help, and thereby compel him to employ union men."

START MORAN CAMPAIGN IN LYNN TO-DAY

Successful Rally Held At Home of the Prohibition State Alliance Secretary.

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Sept. 1.—The John B. Moran campaign for Governor is formally on in this city, having been opened with a rally at the home of Wilbur Moon, State secretary of the Prohibition Alliance at No. 46 Maple street.

The gathering was not advertised for a big noon rally, Mr. Moon merely notifying some of his friends that there was to be some speaking in Mr. Moran's behalf. There were 150 present, several women being among the number.

The guests assembled on the lawn in front of Mr. Moon's house. Japanese lanterns were strung about the grounds and light refreshments were served by Mr. Moon's family.

The rally was opened by Councilman J. John Hooper, who spoke briefly, urging all voters to support Mr. Moran, irrespective of party affiliations.

The principal speaker was John A. Nicholls, chairman of the Prohibition State Committee. Mr. Nicholls denied the statement by Josiah Quincy, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, to the effect that the Prohibitionists were trying to force a fusion with the Democratic party.

"That is not true," said Mr. Nicholls. "The situation is just this. The time has come when we need a Governor who will enforce strictly the laws pertaining to the sale of liquor."

Then Mr. Nicholls delivered a splendid tribute to Mr. Moran's fearlessness and ability as District Attorney, as instanced by his prosecution of the Hotel Touraine and other notable cases.

"These things," said the speaker, "are sufficient to warrant the Prohibition people in accepting Mr. Moran's candidacy."

VETERANS TALK SPANISH WAR

The first reunion of the Spanish war veterans of New England began to-day at "The Weirs," Lake Winnipesaukee, N. H., and will be continued to-morrow and Monday. The New Hampshire Veterans' Association is host.

Two campfires will be held, at which veterans of both the Civil and Spanish wars will speak, and the old war songs will be sung by the veterans of both wars.

The arrangements for the affair are in charge of a committee, of which Captain Charles E. Jeffery of Lynn is the head. He is ably assisted by Captain Frederick A. Walker and Captain Walter R. Brown of Boston and the other vice-presidents.

England's greatest living general, all his life a woman-hater, succumbs at last to feminine charms. He falls desperately in love with a beautiful New York woman. In the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

RATE LAW MADE FAIRBANKS POOR

KANSAS CITY Mo., Sept. 1.—Vice President Fairbanks is a poor man, too poor to pay car fares for his private secretary, at least so he said last night.

Representative Ellis asked him where his secretary was.

The Vice-President thrust one hand into his pocket, and the clinking of silver dollars could be heard.

"A private secretary is a luxury these days," he said. "It costs money to ride on railroad trains since the new rate law. I could not afford to pay fare for myself and a private secretary, so I left him at home."

POLICE FOUGHT MOB AT SALEM WILLOWS.

An incipient riot at Salem Willows last night resulted when the police arrested a drunken member of a trolley party from Lynn and Cambridge. The man yelled and fought and his friends tried to rescue him. A free fight ensued and the crowd took Policeman McNiff's club away. McNiff held the train up until he recovered his club.

ST. PETER'S LAWN PARTY TO BE A BRILLIANT FETE

Parochial Residence Grounds on Meeting House Hill Will Be Scene of Beauty.

The annual lawn party of St. Peter's Parish, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, is held this afternoon and evening on the spacious grounds surrounding the parochial residence.

The decorations are on an elaborate scale, neither pains nor expense being spared in arranging them. At night the grounds will be beautifully illuminated with electric and Japanese lanterns in the most artistic design.

Thousands of tickets have already been sold, by the women of the parish, and the committee in charge of the affair. The proceeds will be used towards paying for the new convent for the sisters of the parish which is nearing completion.

The women of the parish will have charge of the several tables. They have been working long and industriously for this affair, and the result of their labors will be seen to-morrow afternoon and night. The tables will be in charge of the following:

Married ladies' table—Mrs. S. Cullen, Mrs. P. F. McDonald, Mrs. J. B. Hayes, Mrs. T. J. Armstrong, Mrs. De Lapp, Mrs. T. Fitzgibbon, Mrs. K. Nolan, Mrs. Byrne, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Donahue, Mrs. Sheehan and Mrs. A. Moakley.

5 DESTITUTE CHILDREN ARE SENT TO HOME

Deserted Mother Fails in Effort to Provide for Her Little Ones.

Five neglected brothers and sisters were sent to the Home for Destitute Catholic Children on Harrison avenue to-day in the South Boston Municipal Court by Judge Fallon upon the recommendation of Agent Mann of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who investigated the case.

The story as told by the mother, Mrs. Sylvia Walker of No. 85 Athens street, South Boston, of her struggles to support the little ones since her husband's desertion two years ago, was pitiful. Unable to obtain work the poor mother did everything to keep her family of five together, but the task was too great.

The children are Clifton, aged eleven; Arline, eight; Norman, seven; Sylvia, five; and Leon, two. They are all bright and intelligent in spite of their neglect.

FOUGHT POLICE TO SAVE FATHER

A little boy, aged four and one-half years, fought two policemen who arrested his father, A. F. Freitas, aged thirty-eight, of No. 4 Laconia street, on a larceny charge on Tremont street yesterday. The police think the arrest will clear up the mystery of many dress suit case thefts from North and South Stations recently, about which they have received complaints. The detectives found several of the stolen bags in pawnshops, and from the descriptions of the man who sold them they suspected Freitas. He was found and arrested yesterday by Inspectors Shields and Murphy.

Freitas is of Portuguese descent and claims to belong to a family of distinction which has met with misfortune. Several of the brokers have identified Freitas as the man who sold them.

Freitas, the police say, was born in this city of Portuguese parents. He is well known to the police, having been sentenced in June, 1904, to the house of correction for one year for larceny.

INDICT GILLETTE FOR GIRL'S MURDER

HERKIMER, N. Y., Sept. 1.—An indictment charging murder in the first degree against Chester Gillette, who is alleged to have killed Miss Grace Brown at Big Moose Lake, was reported by the special grand jury appointed by Governor Higgins on the first day's sitting.

Gillette was arraigned and C. D. Thomas and A. M. Mills were assigned to defend him.

CONDEMNED MEATS SENT TO OTHER STATES

Packers' Agents Getting Rid of Goods Under Ban of State Board of Health.

Packing houses, those of Boston and Massachusetts and the Eastern depots of Western concerns, are to-day busily collecting all the canned meats which were condemned by the Massachusetts State Board of Health, and are shipping this product to other New England States and to more distant points.

Representatives of the packing houses admit that they are now taking this action. They say that they have been selling the same sort of goods for years, but that under the laws of Massachusetts they cannot continue to do so here.

Manager Warner of the Boston branch of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger said: "We are selling no canned goods that have been condemned. Our customers have been assured that all goods condemned b ythe State board will be taken back and the money refunded or other goods given in exchange. About four cases of the 'Advance' brand of deviled ham, which was declared to contain as much connective tissue as muscle and which was said to be preserved by boracic acid, are awaiting order for transportation from headquarters in Chicago."

Returned to Chicago.

Manager Clark of Libby, McNeill & Libby said: "The seven brands of canned meat which the State Board of Health has condemned can no longer be found for sale in Massachusetts. They have all been returned to the packing houses in Chicago to be finally disposed of."

Manager Twombly of Armour & Co. said: "Armour & Co. are making every effort to comply with the laws of this State. Any goods that we have sold which have been condemned by the State authorities we are perfectly willing to take back. We will gladly replace them in whatever way our customers desire. At no time did Armour & Co. refuse to purchase goods which the State Board of Health has declared adulterated and no firm which has any of this condemned canned meat need be in a quandry as to what to do with it. We will take it all back.

Laws More Stringent.

"We will have no difficulty of disposing of all this in the other states. These same goods have been on the market in practically all the other states for years and, so far as I know, can be bought anywhere outside of Massachusetts. The laws here are more stringent than those of other states, and we are forced to comply with them. We are not financially embarrassed by this situation, and we are getting ready for shipment to Chicago one car-load of the canned goods in question, there to be disposed of as they see fit."

FREIGHT CUT DOWN, YET ICE PRICES SOAR

Advance of $1 a Ton To-day, Though Railroad Rate Opens New Sources of Supply.

CONTINUE TO "SOAK 'EM"

In the face of the reduction in freight rates for the shipment of ice from $3.40 per ton to $2.50 per ton, going into effect to-day on the Boston & Maine Railroad, the Ice Trust to-day declared an advance in the price of ice from $4 to $5 a ton to large dealers.

This cheaper rate for freight enables Boston dealers to secure at less cost for transportation ice from storage places which until this time have not been drawn from this year. Vice President Barry, of the Boston & Maine Railroad, said to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day that the new rates were secured from the Inter-State Commission as the places from which ice will now be hauled had not been rated previously this year. This, rail road men say, means that the Boston Trust will have an abundance of ice at cheaper rates for which they will secure $1 more a ton from the wholesalers.

The Boston Ice Company now charges a uniform rate of 25 cents per 100 pounds, or $5 a ton, to wholesale customers, beginning to-day.

F. J. Bartlett, treasurer of the Boston Ice Company, says that this increase will not affect the retailers and the consumers who put in small quantities.

According to Mr. Bartlett, the increase to wholesalers is to prevent an ice famine by making the price higher.

The Independent Ice Company announces an increase from $4 a ton to $5. This firm, as does the Boston Company gives as a reason for this increase the desire to curtail the demand for ice to avoid a famine.

All of the other Boston ice companies will follow the lead of these two larger concerns.

In spite of the announcement that the raise in the price of ice at wholesale will not affect the cost to private consumers, the prices to customers have been advanced by the retailers in several Massachusetts cities and towns during the past week.

In Weymouth to-day the price of ice was advanced from 45 to 75 cents per 100 pounds.

In Worcester, owing to the advance, college ices have gone up five cents and all other luxuries are similarly affected.

HINTS GUILTY KNOWLEDGE OF BANK OFFICIALS

Receiver at Philadelphia Begins Investigation of Others in Big Crash.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—That other officials or clerks had guilty knowledge of affairs of the Real Estate Company before it closed its doors last Tuesday, is now believed, and this feature of the crash is being investigated by Receiver George R. Earle, Jr. Receiver Earle expresses surprise that William F. North, treasurer of the company, and Horace Hill, auditor, did not acquaint the directors with the condition of affairs if they were aware of the transactions of President Hipple and the entanglement of the bank's affairs.

Receiver Earle said yesterday that he had unearthed in the bank securities aggregating about $1,000,000 face value in the name of Adolph Segal. Until he investigates more fully he will not be able to say how much they are worth.

The statement of Receiver Earle that Frank K. Hipple, the late president of the concern, had stolen securities valued at $65,000, and that the lending of $5,000,000 to Adolf Segal on insufficient securities amounted to as much as theft, created a sensation throughout the city yesterday.

It has become known that there had not been a meeting of the directors of the failed bank for nearly three years, every detail having been left to the president of the company, Frank K. Hipple.

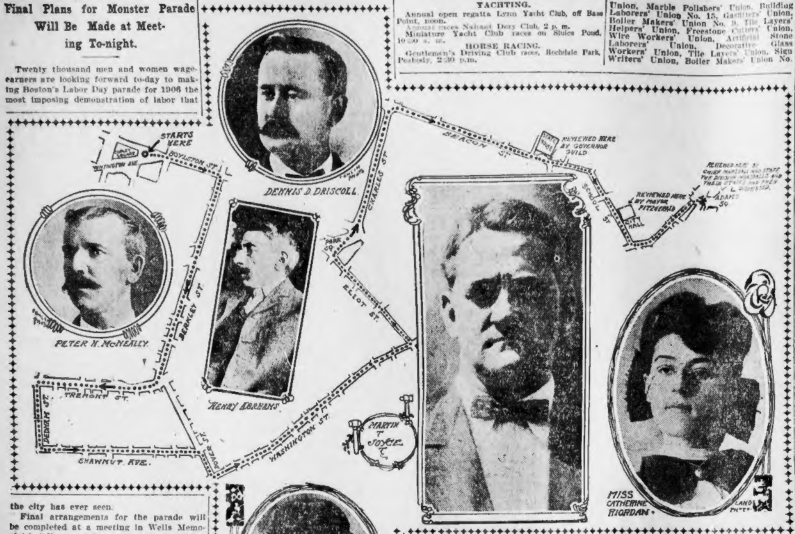
GOVERNOR AND MAYOR WILL REVIEW 20,000 WAGE EARNERS ON LABOR DAY

Final Plans for Monster Parade Will Be Made at Meeting To-night.

Twenty thousand men and women wage-earners are looking forward to-day to making Boston's Labor Day parade for 1906 the most imposing demonstration of labor that the city has ever seen.



MISS ANNIE M. SULLIVAN.
MANHATTAN Studio.

ROUTE OF LABOR PARADE AND LEADERS.

Final arrangements for the parade will be completed at a meeting in Wells Memorial building to-night of Chief Marshal Martin Joyce, president of th eBoston Central Labor Union, and his division marshals and staff.

If the present arrangements are carried out, and if the weather is at all favorable, the parade will be a noteworthy illustration of the strength of the labor forces in Boston. In mere numbers alone, a line of 20,000, the parade will be impressive.

Army of Craftsmen.

Representing every form of industrial skill, this big army of craftsmen will march through the city streets, that all may see them and know that they represent organized labor and union work.

The parade will be in three divisions, the Central Labor Union Division first, the Building Trades Section of the C. L. U. second and District Assembly No. 30, K. of L., original, third. The line will start promptly at 10 o'clock from Copley square and the route will be as follows:

Bolyston, Berkeley, Tremont, Dedham streets, Shawmut avenue, Dover, Washington, Eliot streets, Park square, Charles, Beacon, School, Washington streets to Adams square, where the parade will be dismissed.

Will Review Parade.

Governor Guild will review the parade at the State House, Mayor Fitzgerald at City Hall and the chief marshal and staff and the division marshals and their staffs at Adams square.

The women trades unionists will take a prominent part in the parade. The Laundry Workers' Union has planned for a large float to carry all the women members of the union. The float will be heavily draped with the national colors and drawn by six dapple gray horses. On the side of the float the union label will be displayed. On the committee of arrangements are Misses Lida McFeaters, Annie Sullivan and Katherine Riordan.

Following will be another float carrying the members of the Cigar Strippers' Union, of which Miss Bessie Jacobs is president. There will also be tally-hos, bearing members of the Women's Auxiliary of Boston Typographical Union, and women workers of the municipal printing plant.

Women to Dress in White.

All of the women are to be dressed in white and will carry flags, and at the head of each float three young women will carry aloft a banner emblamatic of labor.

Near the head of the Central Labor Union division of the parade will be a carriage containing Solomon Gompers, the aged father of President Sampel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, who will be a honored guest. He will be accompanied by Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Central Labor Union, another veteran worker in the labor movement. Mr. Gompers has been a member in good standing of a labor union for about sixty years.

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL TO HAVE SEPARATE PARADE

Arrangements for the Building Trades Council Labor Day parade were completed last night. Twenty-two organizations, representing about 1,000 men, are expected to be in line.

Chief Marshal Thomas F. Keough announced that the formation would be as follows: Delegates to the Council, carriage containing Masters Paul and Joseph Cashman carrying the banner of the organization; Woodworkers' Union No. 24, Insulator and Asbestos Workers' Union, Steamfitters' Helpers' Union, Painters' District Council, Cement and Asphalt Workers' Union, Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' Union, Paperhangers' Union, Marble Cutters and Setters' Union, Steamfitters' Union, Slate and Tile Roofers' Union, Marble Polishers' Union, Building Laborers' Union No. 15, Gasfitters' Union, Boiler Makers' Union No. 9, Tile Layers' Helpers' Union, Freestone Cutters' Union, Wire Workers' Union, Artificial Stone Laborers' Union, Decorative Glass Workers' Union, Tile Layers' Union, Sign Writers' Union, Boiler Makers' Union No. 431 and Slate and Soapstone Workers' Union. An invitation is extended to every building craft that desires to parade with the Council.

The chief marshal will establish his headquarters at the north-east side of Berkeley and Boylston streets at 9 o'clock and the parade will move at 9:30 sharp. All organizations in passing in review before the Governor and Mayor will make the regulation salute. The chief marshal will review the parade at Adams square.

The route is as follows: Berkeley, to Dover, to Washington, to Eliot, to Park square, to Charles, to Beacon, to School, to Washington, to Adams square.

The national government should feed all poor children. The Countess of Warwick says their dietary is the nation's concern. A most spirited plea by one of the most beautiful of the British aristocracy and King Edward's personal friend. In to-morrow's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

"I'M AWFULLY ANNOYED," SAYS MISS CLIFFORD

Father of Actress' Fiance Apparently Thinks Money Will Stop Match.

YOUNG MAN NOW AT WORK

LONDON, Sept. 1.—"Awfully annoyed," is the way Camille Clifford, the show girl, feels at the opposition of Lord Aberdare to her marriage to his son, the Hon. Henry Lindsay Bruce, according to the young man himself.

He declares he will marry her, but his father is equally positive that he will not.

The young man is of age and has an income of about $7,500 from real estate owned by him in Philadelphia. In addition he has started in the motor car business, and he may be seen daily in workingman's garb superintending the work on automobiles.

The interpretation placed on Lord Aberdare's statement that his son will not marry the actress is that he expects to find a way of inducing her to break the engagement.

"She is an awfully independent sort, and really doesn't care a rap whether she is married or not," says the young man.

Miss Clifford is now returning posthaste from Norway to look over the situation.

The friends of Miss Clifford say she is mortified over the whole affair. Her plan, according to her friends, was to keep the matter a secret until Lord Aberdare had been conciliated; or, failing that, to have a secret wedding.

Lord Aberdare threatens to leave all his money to his second son if the eldest persists in marrying the actress.

WINTHROP TAX RATE UP.

The tax rate for Winthrop this year is announced as $17.70 on $1,000, which is seventy cents more than last year and the highest in the history of the town.

GANS REFUSES TO FAKE BOUT FOR $25,000

FIGHT ON THE LEVEL JOE SAYS

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Sept. 1.—It has been reported that Joe Gans has been offered $25,000 to "lay down," but the colored fighter could not be reached. He would rather win this fight and get nothing. He simply means business. He feels the sting of race prejudice, and thinks that a victory over Nelson means putting his people on a par with the paleface.

One thing is certain—the fight will be a square one. When Goldfield does anything, good faith and honesty attend her efforts. If either of the fighters should fake he would never get away from this place alive.

FIGHT FANS AT COLUMBIA.

There will be a big gathering of sporting men and others interested in the Nelson-Gans fight at the Columbia Theatre Monday evening. The doors of the theatre will be opened at 6:30, and the returns read as fast as received. The outcome of the Mellody-Thomas fight in Chelsea will also be announced. Tickets sold at that time are good for the evening burlesque and vaudeville show.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Boston, Sept. 1.—Although the air was chilly a double-header with the Athletics on a half-holiday was too much of an attraction for the fans to resist and the baseball enthusiast of Boston kept the ticket sellers busy this afternoon.

The first game was carded for 1:30 o'clock, which meant early lunch for a lot of people, but they didn't mind that.

All hands warmed up to Chick Stahl, the new manager and forgot all about the cold weather. The ways the boys are hustling under the lively leadership of the celebrated "chicken" has been a revelation to the Boston fans and everybody is rooting hard for a continuance of the splendid work that has characterized the playing of the Pilgrims in the last three games.

The Athletics went into the game somewhat dazed. They expected easy picking in Boston and looked upon the series as simply a means to boost their winning percentage. The loss of two straight games for a starter has taken some of their ginger away from them.

With the pitchers working well and the players full of snap, the Boston team is asking odds from no one. The fans are tickled to death at their recent showing.

Mack is in a bad way for twirlers, but will probably depend on Indian Bender and Coakley, a fine pair to go up against.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The Giants have been up against all kinds of trouble of late, and have dropped games to this team and that, but they have a club here to oppose them to-day that they are confident they could defeat with their eyes shut. Of course, most every one knows that team, but for the benefit of those who possibly don't, it may be mentioned that it is none other than the "Cinches" from Boston, under the leadership of Fred Tenney.

It's a hot bunch of ball players the Boston Nationals have. They have about as much right lining up against other major league teams as a nine of kids that play on the dumps. The Hubites are crippled in every possible way. Catchers are playing in the infield, pitchers in the outfield, etc., which goes to make the team the biggest burlesque attraction on the circuit.

Pfeffer and Wiltse will probably be the pitchers used to-day.

NOLAN TELLS HOW NELSON WILL WIN

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Sept. 1.—The air here is now full of declarations of confidence by both of the fighters who are to appear in the big mill on Labor Day. From present indications all their differences in the business of the fight have been settled and there is a clear road now to the scrap. Both Gans and Nelson are spending the remaining few days in giving confidence to their respective supporters by assuring them that a victory can only be won by the fighter who is the idol of their respective factions.

Billy Nolan, in fact, has gone so far as to lay out a full and detailed story of how the fight is going. He is even confident that he knows the blows that will be struck and how long it will take for one or the other to go down.

"Nelson and Gans will go through thirteen rounds of the most desperate three-minute sessions in the history of the American ring," is Nolan's theory. "By that time the negro will have cut the Dane to ribbons, mostly by punches in the earlier part of the battle. With Gans looking a sure winner, Nelson will begin to show his marvellous endurance. In the opening of the fourteenth round there will be a new Nelson. He will rush Gans around the ring, landing with lefts and rights, a wallop to the jaw, another to the stomach, and Gans will be counted out."

Thus Nolan spent his time dreaming, but the vision was so realistic to him that he recalled all of it and turned it over to one of the fight reporters round by round. This is a sample:

"ROUND ONE—They stepped forward briskly and shook hands. Each tried a left and was short. Nelson blocked a left for the body. They sparred cautiously. Gans put in light left on nose and swung left on stomach. Gans rammed right on ribs and they clinched. They broke and Gans swung heavily across the chest with his left. They clinched and hung together. Nelson ducked a left swing for the head and stopped a right body blow with his elbow. They clinched. Nelson ripped in right on stomach and blocked left swing for the ribs."

Then Comes the Finish.

Thus the dope continued, until Gans and Nelson had battered each other, in Nolan's mind's eye, till both were pretty well tired out. In the fourteenth round Nelson regained his ebbing strength and the negro was finished in a hurry. After Nolan had finished his realistic description, one of the reporters asked:

"Do you mind if I take this over to Gans? I guess he would be glad to know just how Nelson expects to win the fight and will be pleased to know where the sleep punch is coming from and just what time."

Nolan looked puzzled for a second, then said:

"The fact that I prophesy the fight to go that way is no indication that it will. Nelson himself expects the fight to last about an hour, and that is what Gans thinks. The dope I gave you was based on that supposition."

The ambitious reporters immediately took the trail for Gans's headquarters and asked the "smoke" what he thought of it. Gans answered:

"Don't bother me with anything Nolan says. I'm sick of him now."

Gans in Heavy Sweater.

Gans continued his training stunts as usual, but it was remarked that he was wearing a heavy sweater during his early morning run. Trainer McDonald said that he thought it advisable for Gans to keep the heavy clothes on.

"It can't weaken him," said McDonald, "and it will help him to make weight just right on Monday. Gans just now is a bit under 133, and he will not have to forfeit any money on account of his avoirdupois.

Gans is not pinching himself in the matter of foods or liquids. He takes a bottle of beer occasionally with his dinner, and it looks as if the weight question is one about which there need be no further speculation. Most of those who visit the Gans camp are favorably impressed with his work. He hammers away at the punching bag and trips the rope sometimes for twenty minutes at a stretch, and his breathing is not the least bit disturbed by the swift, continued exercise. His eyes are full of snap, and he seems capable of enduring much fatigue.

Goldfield's streets are already thronged with strangers, and every train that arrives adds to the congested condition of affairs. Salt Lake and Denver appear to be particularly well represented.

Nolan Still Nasty.

A statement made by Billy Nolan to-day caused President Tex Rickard to make a journey to Gans's quarters with words of warning and advice. What Nolan said was: "I believe some people are wondering whether in the event of Gans's being slightly overweight we will demand his forfeit and proceed with the fight.

"I want it to be understood that there will be no fight if Gans is one ounce over weight at any time.

"If he is more than 133 pounds at the first weighing at noon we will take his forfeit of $5,000 and give him another chance at 133 pounds, providing he puts up a fresh forfeit. In other words, we will demand a forfeit every time he weighs if he is overweight."

As there are to be three weighings this means that it is possible for Gans to forfeit $15,000 and then not get a fight. Gans told President Rickard not to worry for a moment, as there was not the slightest chance of a hitch on the score of weight.

FIGHT FANS CAN'T PICK A WINNER

There was never so much local confusion at picking a winner as in the Mellody-Thomas battle at the Lincoln A. C. Labor Day night when they will settle the welterweight title between them.

Many favor the coast boy and point to his decisive win over Tommy Sullivan, who went to a draw with Mellody not so long ago. But confidence is not shaken in the Bunker Hill slugger, who has shown his wallop on several occasions and the fans remember it.

Both are sure of winning and there will be very little difference in their price when they enter the ring. Those who have followed Mellody's career closest say he should win if he is right, and Honey says he is, and the one who can dope out the winner must be an artist.

The doors will open at 6:30 sharp in order to give the full details of the championship bout at Goldfield between Gans and Nelson.

The first bout will be on at 7:45, and if every bout should go the limit the show will positively be over at 10 o'clock, which will give out of town members plenty of time to catch their trains.

FINE FIELD WILL START IN $40,000 FUTURITY RACE AT SHEEPSHEAD

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The great day of the two-year-old is at hand. The transfer of racing from Saratoga, where the Saratoga Association for the Improvement of the Breed of Horses brought to a brilliant close the most successful meeting ever known up State the day before yesterday, will be celebrated at Sheepshead Bay this afternoon by the running of the nineteenth Futurity.

The Futurity purse this season will be close to $40,000, and the winner's end will be all of $35,000. The official weather prophet at Washington promises a bright, cool day, and if he is not a false prophet the track will be uncommonly fast. The Futurity field will be summoned from the saddling paddock about 4:15 o'clock.

The richest and best advertised of American two-year-old races, the Futurity, invariably attracts crowds of tremendous proportions, and as often as not it furnishes a splendid contest. This season's will be a good Futurity. Unluckily Salvidere and Fountainblue are not eligible, but Peter Pan, Pope Joan, Conville, De Mund, Horace E., Electioneer and half a dozen other youngsters of both sexes that have shown first-class form at Saratoga and other tracks recently are.

It is the consensus of expert opinion that they are splendidly matched, and they are eminently fit. Many have been hardened by racing since the early months of the season, and more than one perhaps is to-day at the zenith of his fame. Because of the pernicious practice of early two-year-old racing in this country it frequently happens that the winner of the Futurity never afterward runs to his or her form of that day.

WORLD MARKS ARE MADE BY ECSTATIC

WORLD'S RECORDS MADE BY ECSTATIC

FASTEST HEAT IN RACE BY PACING MARE—2:01¾.

FASTEST TWO HEATS BY PACING MARE IN RACE—2:01¾, 2:02¾.

FASTEST SPLIT-HEAT RACE BY PACING MARE—2:03¼, 2:01¾, 2:02¾.

BY EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

It was the fast pacers that saved the closing of the Grand Circuit meeting at Readville yesterday from being a total failure in a racing point of view, as at the start there was no interest in seeing the top favorites travel around the track easily in front of their opponents.

Ecstatic, owned by J. P. Holder, of Yonkers, N. Y., and trained by Frank Lang, of Barton, Vt., was the trouble maker. In the first heat of the free-for-all Angus Pointer simply led from wire to wire like there was nothing except paying to him the bulk of the purse money.

After the word in the second the daughter of Ontario made battle, racing yoked with the previous heat winner to the final hundred yards, when Angus Pointer called enough. The time of the mile, 2:01¾, was a world's record for pacing mares in a race. The third heat was a repetition of the second, except in the last dash to the wire Angus Pointer could not stand the strain and went to a break.

The time of this heat being 2:02¾ made Ecstatic, too, the holder of the world's fastest two consecutive heats in a race. The Froncho before held the record for mares, made at Cleveland in 2:02¾, thus for the single race heat the former lowered the mark a whole second.

GAME IS THROWN OUT.

Secretary Morse of the New England League announces that the game last Thursday at Worcester between the local nine and Haverhill, and won by Worcester, has been thrown out. The game was scheduled to be played in Haverhill, and transferred to Worcester without the consent of all the other clubs in the league, in violation of the constitution.

TUDOR FARM CLUB TO REOPEN TO-DAY

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The Tudor Farm Club in Sharon is to be reopened to-day, and will unquestionably regain that popularity which was its until a few weeks ago. Mr. Cunningham, who has made quite a name for himself in other places, is to be the manager of the farm this season, and his acquisition means everything for the future success of the club. He has for several years been associated with motorists, and his experience makes him the right man for the position of manager of this well-known club.

The news that the Mercedes people will discontinue racing is not at all surprising considering the reversals that have encountered this famous car in the international events of recent years. There was once a time when the Mercedes appeared more often as a winner, rather than an also ran. While the Mercedes is to drop racing for touring it will be represented in the forthcoming Vanderbilt, three cars of that make having been nominated to represent Germany in the Long Island affair.

* * *

In speaking of the forthcoming Vanderbilt, Chairman Thompson of the committee in charge of the same, said yesterday:

"Remembering the fact that in past years it has been the custom of the public to take advantage of the Vanderbilt Cup race to drive their cars over the official course and other roads of Nassau county at a prohibitive speed, Sheriff Gildersleeve has announced that this year, not only on Sundays, but also on week days, he will have his deputies in force on the roads to prevent any speeding. It is his intention to use the methods sometimes used in New Jersey and other places of taking the registration numbers, without making any arrest at the time, after which warrants will be served on the registered owners. The Vanderbilt Cup Commission indorses his action, feeling that while they can control the entrants to the Vanderbilt Cup race, they have no control over the public.

Owing to the number of entries to the American Elimination Trials, and also considering the class of machines which will compete, there will undoubtedly be as great a demand for seats on the official stand as for the Vanderbilt cup race itself.

The elimination trials this year will have fifteen machines, each the finest result of perfect workmanship, and will be driven by both American and foreign drivers of known ability. This race should be fully as exciting as the big race itself.

At a meeting held last Wednesday at the club rooms the contest and technical committees of the New York Motor Club decided not to let it drop the economy test of the club, which was to have been held last week, but which was not started on account of the fact that manufacturers and agents are engrossed with preparations for the Vanderbilt races and the getting out of 1907 models. The allied committees decided to hold the test on or about the first of November, believing that a Fall contest following the very complete rules already compiled will appeal to a great many trade interests. A recommendation to that effect was made to the directors of the club.

* * *

S. B. Stevens of Rome, N. Y., must be credited with the White Mountains Reliability Trials Motor procedure for next year. Mr. Stevens' plan is to have a pacemaker in each competitive class who shall carry a flag and he loses the flag if anything happens to the machine, the next numbered vehicle taking the flag. If the entrants are numbered they will be started according to their number and must not pass the preceding car unless something happens to it. This and a moderate running schedule will do away with observers.

NEWYORK TEAM IS FAVORITE

The New York team is a strong favorite in the twenty-four hour race at Revere cycle track, which starts Sunday night at 12:05 and continues Labor Day. This team, made up of John and Menus Bedell and Connolly, is considered so favorably because the Bedell brothers beat the other stars in the big six-day race and have made their reputation in an endurance test.

At that the American team, composed of Hugh McLean, Will Stinson and McDonald, and the Irish trio, Jimmy Moran, Pat Logan and Elmer Collins, will make the racing warm enough to suite the fans. The event, the first of its kind in this section of the country, is attracting widespread attention and is the gem bike battle of the year with all the leading pace followers in the saddle.

It is one of the greatest holiday cards ever put on in the Hub and the three teams of three men each will develop the most exciting sport crowding the small saucer track.

The returns of the Gans-Nelson fight will be announced by special wire, which has been put in by the track management.

"JOE GANS LICKED BEFORE HE STARTS"

—Tommy Ryan.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Sept. 1.—The question that is troubling the sports here is, "Will Gans be at to make 133?" as there have been many rumors, hard to down, saying that the colored man is having all kinds of difficulty making the required weight.

This has influenced the betting greatly. There are many who predict that when the gladiators enter the ring Monday Nelson will be an even money choice against the colored boxer, or even the favorite.

Billy Nolan, the scrappy manager of Nelson, says that he will not wait over fifteen minutes for Gans to enter the ring, and that if Joe doesn't appear in that time there will be no fight, as was the case in the Dane's recent bout scheduled with Herrera, the Mexican.

Tommy Ryan is here. He says he doesn't see how Gans can fight at the weight specified. Talking of the fight he said: "I don't see how Joe can work at 133 pounds. They've got him licked before he starts."

CALLAHAN NOW WITH THE SOX

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—President Charles Comiskey of the Chicago American League ball club announces that James Callahan had been signed to finish the season with the White Stockings. Callahan was a member of the team last year, but this year has been managing a local semi professional team.

Fifteen Big Dolls, That Stand a Foot and a Half High, Given as Consolation Prizes to Writers of 15 Next Best Letters

LITTLE ROSLINDALE GIRL WINS THE DOLL HOUSE

Louise Jewett of No. 51 Loraine St., Roslindale, Named by Judges as Winner of "Happy House"

THE judges in the doll house contest have awarded the "Happy House" and all its furnishings to Louise Jewett, ten years old, of No. 51 Loraine street, Roslindale.

It was such a very hard matter to decide upon the winner of the doll house contest that the Doll House Editor decided to give also as consolation prizes fifteen big dolls. You will find the names of the winners of these dolls in the last column on this page.

The thousands of letters which were received in this contest were all read carefully, and the number was reduced to a comparative few. These were submitted to the following:

MISS MARGARET BURNET, superintendent of the Boston Domestic League, and an expert in scientific housekeeping.

MISS MARY BARROWS of the publishing firm of Whitcomb & Barrows, authors and publishers of works on domestic science.

MISS HELEN COGAN, No. 49 Farragut avenue, Somerville, teacher in the public schools.

Two of these judges at once agreed upon the letter of the bright little Roslindale girl as the prize winner.

But there were so many splendid letters that it was decided to add fifteen dolls as prizes. They are beauties. They open and shut their eyes and are half as tall as "Happy House," or a foot and a half in height.

And so the Happys have found a home at last where they can go with their beautiful house and live in peace and happiness.

A little housekeeper has been found who knows just how to keep the Happy home clean and neat.

Little Louise Jewett is ten years old and a good little housekeeper, and she has two brothers to play with, so her new toy will make her very happy. Louise was very pleased when she heard she had won the doll house.

"I will be very good to Mrs. Happy and the children," she said.

Here you see a picture of this little prize winner standing beside the doll house, which is almost as high as she is. There is a picture, too, of one of the dolls given as extra prizes.

The Doll Editor would like to send a doll house to every little girl in the land.

The letters have been well worded and neatly written, and it is plain to be seen that there are hundreds of little girls going to school and getting a good education, which is one of the best things a girl can have.

Dear little girls, many of you are sadly disappointed at not having the lovely house for your own, but you can all be happy in knowing that it has gone where it will do the most good and bring the greatest pleasure.

And though you have not won the prize, the writing of the letters has taught you all a little lesson in neatness.

You must bear the disappointment like brave little women, and go on trying to learn all you can about neatness and cleanliness.

Remember that everything you learn now will come in useful when you are older.

You have taken great pains over your letters to the Doll House Editor, and to write a neat, intelligent letter is a very nice accomplishment.

Mrs. Happy and the Happy family thank you all for your kind letters and good wishes.

Mrs. Happy would like to meet you all and to go to you all if she could, but as she can't she sends you her love, and hopes that you will go on trying to become good housekeepers, and that you will help your dear mothers all you can.

And so, dear little maidens, good-by; our correspondence is ended for the time being, but not our friendship.

The Doll House Editor will long hold you and your earnest little letters in loving remembrance.

HERE is a picture of Louise Jewett, winner of the doll house and all its furnishings, whose letter was selected by the judges as the best of all the thousands received.

Louise is 10 years old and lives at No. 51 Loraine street, Roslindale. She says she will be good to the "Happy" family and take good care of "Happy House."

She is standing beside the doll house which she won. The small picture shows one of the big dolls, fifteen of which were awarded as consolation prizes.

Want to Get Stout? Follow These Tips

"THERE are few things which do away more quickly with good looks than the fact of being too thin. When a woman is aware that such is her case she should lose no time in placing herself on a fattening regime which is not only a question of diet—though this forms an important part—but of the habits and temperament," says an authority.

"The following rules have been found beneficial to many, and if persevered with will be successful in the most obstinate cases.

"First of all—do not worry. Try to keep an even temperament. Do not take things too seriously. Avoid over-anxiousness and 'fussing.'

"Go to bed in good time, never after 10 o'clock, and preferably by 9.

"Take plenty of milk. Drink it for breakfast and at 5 o'clock instead of tea or coffee, and also at luncheon and dinner.

"Have a glass of milk at 11 in the morning with a biscuit, and a cupful of hot milk the last thing at night. Begin the milk regime by degrees, starting with two glasses a day, and increase this gradually till at least six are taken with ease. Never eat anything salted. Take only the most simple and nourishing foods that can be easily assimilated. Plenty of milk puddings are good, potatoes, green vegetables and fruit, especially black grapes.

"Sweets should be abjured. The sugar they contain may be fattening, but they spoil the appetite for regular meals, which are by far the most important.

"Eat bread in preference to toast. Do not touch vinegar, but take as much oil as can be easily assimilated. Butter and cream are fattening, and should be taken in plenty if the digestion can stand them. Boiled fat bacon is excellent fare for the thin, and as a substitute for milk a few fat bacon sandwiches may be taken in the middle of the morning."

Many Novelties in Jewelry Creations

A GOLD hunting horn, winding once around an opal ball, is a peculiar and original design in scarf pins.

A necklace of uncut stones is said to be one of the latest ideas.

A fancy ring top shows an open design outlined in diamond scroll work and inclosing a fine round pearl.

An otherwise plain gold casket for sweets has an ornamental top handle embellishing the pretty trinket.

Diamond tiaras and diamond-topped back combs are sometimes pointed with clusters alone or in alternation with the single diamond points.

The little foxes that gnaw the vines form an appropriate ornament for the handle of gold or silver grape shears simulating the twisted vine.

Beautiful round pearls set high in the surrounding diamond work catch and retain the eye most pleasantly in a charming simple, but expensive brooch.

A locket of unique effect is of perfectly plain bright gold in heart shape, with a good-sized turquoise framed with the same small gems as a central ornament.

An eminently chic appearance is imparted to a corsage ornament by a large, square-set emerald, which simulates the knot in a costly ribbon bow in diamond work showing a pattern in the ribbons.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT VERY THOUGHTFUL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young lady up to about five months ago. We had a serious quarrel, consequently separated.

The cause of our separation was: I was taken seriously ill twice; on the first occasion she failed to show the least regard for me at all, so much so that she did not even take the trouble to inquire as to my health, but being the first offence I excused her, stating that if it happened again I would not be so lenient.

But, nevertheless, the same offence happened again. She knew perfectly well I was sick, as we were at the theatre the night before I took sick.

I was at her home since, and she stated that she would like to continue companionship again. Do you think I could trust her again, as I have found that she has been very deceitful to me?

A. B.

TO say the least she was not very considerate of your feelings. She certainly should have inquired for you when you were ill. However, I would give her another chance. She may have been only thoughtless.

STOP IT AT ONCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

In the office where I am employed there is a young man (my employer's son) who whenever we are alone together calls me "dear," "sweetheart," etc., and keeps telling me that he loves me. I take it in fun; either laughing at him, or not paying any attention to these remarks. Quite a number of times I have asked him, very seriously, to stop doing so, but he does not heed me. He is a jolly fellow, and we are both very young, so I hardly think he means what he says, but I am not sure. I care for him only as a business associate.

Now, is this thing so improper that I ought to go seriously about stopping it, or even leaving the position on account of it?

WORRIED.

HE has no right to address you in such a manner, and you must stop him at once. Tell him that if he does not stop it you must complain to his father or give up your position. Surely he would not like to see you do that if he is any kind of a man. But in any case do not permit it to go on.

Don't Neglect Every-Day Duties in Striving to Do Some Big Thing

By Beatrice Fairfax

NEARLY all girls believe that life holds serious work for them to do, but the trouble with many is that they look too far afield for that work.

In their striving after big things they are apt to neglect the little, everyday duties that lie close at hand.

As a rule, mixed with the desire to be useful is a slight longing for honor and glory and a lively sense of romance.

There is nothing very romantic about home duties, and they become so much of a routine that there is little outward commendation attached to them, but nevertheless they are the duties that come first.

The girl who goes slumming and trying to raise the masses, while all the while her own old mother may be slaving hard at home, is not fulfilling quite such a noble duty as she imagines.

It is the duty of everyone to do as much for her fellow beings as possible, but duty, like charity, begins at home.

I know a noted clubwoman who spends most of her time lecturing and telling other women about their duties toward mankind.

I also know that her husband spends many of his evenings alone, and that her house looks anything but cheerful or homelike.

There is a woman so filled with concern for mankind in general that she completely overlooks her duty toward one man in particular.

Don't fret and feel that you are of small use in the world if your duties bind you to the home circle.

You are doing your share of the world's work just as nobly and far more unselfishly than many of the women who are making a great splurge. But don't spoil it by grumbling and discontent. Go cheerfully and good-naturedly about your duties and make everyone feel that you are a blessing and a ray of sunlight about the home.

The girl who knows how to make a happy home is fulfilling the highest duty of woman.

If circumstances are such that it is possible or necessary for you to go out into the world and earn your living or give your services for the betterment of humanity, do so by all means, but be very sure first that your duty points that way, and that you are not neglecting home duties.

Many girls who earn their livings contribute largely toward the home expenses, and most certainly they are doing their duty nobly.

But the girl who is obliged to stay home and help with the housework while her sister earns money need not for one moment feel that she is not doing her share just as much as the wage-earner. Someone must keep the home machinery running smoothly, and the one who does it well deserves the highest praise.

When you are looking for a mission in life look close at home.

Sometimes the noblest missions lie at our very doors, but having hitched our mission chariot to a star, we are not content to come down to sober, prosaic old earth.

There is nothing praiseworthy in treating the outside world well if you neglect and illtreat your own little corner.

Attend to the duties that lie near at hand first, and then if you have time and opportunity, go further afield.

Picnic Baskets and How to Pack Them

HERE are a few suggestions and some instructions for making up three typical picnic baskets for a day in the country.

The first shall be suitable for a party who, having decided to carry their own provisions, discard everything which makes unnecessary weight. Into this, which may be called the simple basket, will be put some savory turnovers, sandwiches, rolls and butter, lettuce, lemon syrup to be diluted and fresh fruit.

The second basket may be of a more elaborate character, as in this case it will be conveyed by horse, boat or rail. Into this will go such delicacies as mayonnaise of fowl or fish, cannelons of meat, galantine of beef or veal, a pigeon pie, strawberry shortcake, fruit salad, rolls and butter, coffee.

The third basket will contain dainty cakes, sandwiches, brown bread and butter, French scones, and other materials for the making of that popular meal called tea.

In two baskets out of three have been included sandwiches, as these, if well made, are always thoroughly appreciated. These should be wrapped in a damp serviette (or grease-proof paper, obtainable at the grocers') to keep them moist. Lettuce should be well washed and left slightly damp, and also be protected by a wetted cloth. Fresh, soft fruit should be covered entirely by cabbage or other leaves to keep it cool.

Savory Puffs—Three-quarters of a pound of good pastry rolled a quarter of an inch in thickness cut into eight squares. Have ready a mixture of half a pound of beef, half a pound of potatoes, and a very small onion, seasoned with salt and pepper and moistened with gravy. Place a large spoonful of the mixture on each square. Fold from corner to corner. Brush with a beaten egg and bake in a hot oven forty minutes.

Veal Galantine—Remove the bones from four pounds of breast or loin of veal. Season it with salt and pepper and a dust of nutmeg. Spread a layer of sausage or forcemeat over the meat. On this place three hard boiled eggs cut into quarters; also some strips of tongue, or ham. Season again. Roll the meat up tightly and tie in a cloth. Boil steadily for three hours and a half. Remove the cloth. Put the galantine in a clean one. Place between two baking tins with a weight on top. Leave all night to get cold. Finish off by brushing the surface with liquid glaze, and garnish with parsley. The glaze can be bought in sixpenny bottles.

Meat Cannelons.—Mince half a pound of cooked poultry with a quarter of a pound of cooked tongue or ham. Add a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of breadcrumbs, a little gravy or stock; and a beaten egg. Season to taste. Form into six rolls. Place on a greased baking tin. Brush with some of the beaten egg. Sprinkle breadcrumbs over the surface. Bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned, about twenty minutes.

Strawberry Shortcake.—Make half a pound of good short crust, using a beaten egg for mixing. Divide into two round pieces. Bake in a moderate oven on a greased baking tin for twenty minutes. When cold place some crushed strawberries sprinkled with sugar between the cakes. Press them together, and dust with sugar.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

CHAPTER C.

Haggard's Answer

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

HAGGARD went that night to see Rosamund and try to sound her as to her feelings before he went away. It would be something to go away with a reasonable hope of winning her.

As for John Herries, if he found there was nothing to be feared from him as a rival he would leave his secret undisturbed, Haggard told himself.

What he had discovered was a trump card, to be held in reserve, and to be played only if he found Herries was dangerous.

Dinner was over when he reached the house. He was shown into the drawing room, where he found Rosamund and her aunt. He had not seen Rosamund since the news of the loss of the steamship, and somehow the sight of the mourning she wore sent a curious thrill through him.

He might have known, of course, that she would be in black, yet somehow he had never thought of it, and it was through him—though by an accident, only an accident, his mind insisted—that she had lost her father.

Her black dress seemed to bring his deed home to him more vividly than anything yet.

But another thought swiftly followed, and to his mind, eager to find self-justification, it seemed to make his burden of guilt less; if Wynter had not come to his house that night he would inevitably have sailed by the steamer to meet his fate with that of the other passengers.

Presently he found himself standing out on the veranda talking with Rosamund.

"I am not going to distress you, Miss Wynter," he said suddenly, "by telling you of my sympathy. You know that without any words of mine. It has been terrible for us all."

He saw the tears come into the beautiful eyes that were facing the sunset.

"Yes, I am sure you must have felt poor dad's death very much," she said in a low voice. "You saw so much of him."

"It has upset me so much that I feel I must go away for a change," he said. "But before I go, I was anxious to see you, to speak about—about the business. You see, you and I are partners now."

Buried Hopes

Almost unconsciously they had walked down from the veranda on to the stretch of velvet lawn and under the long shadows of the trees, as they talked, tempted by the soft Summer night.

"I don't wish to talk about that now, Mr. Haggard," Rosamund said. "It only reminds me of sad things, and I don't understand business—any business details or arrangements you must discuss with my trustees. Where do you think of going?"

"I have not thought of it much yet," he said, "except that I feel I must go away after all that has happened. And then when I come back——"

He paused. Those thoughts of the morning were in his mind.

If only he could start anew, with all the evil of his life thrust behind him forever, with this girl for his wife all the rest of his life should be open and unsmirched for her sake.

A sudden passion shook him; he had not meant to speak to-night, to tell her of his love, but as he walked by her side in the still garden, on which night, soft with Summer, seemed to be descending like a benediction, the words broke from him resistlessly, almost before he knew.

He had not meant to speak to-night; only the glamour of the falling Summer dusk, the brooding peace of this garden, murmurous with the drowsy whisperings amid the leafy tree tops, swept in upon Philip Haggard with a sense of restfulness that was in strange contrast with the last weeks of mental stress that he had lived through; the intoxicating sweetness of her nearness, and the low music of her voice that thrilled him—all this swayed the man to a sudden, resistless passion, and the words broke from him almost before he knew they were spoken.

"Rosamund!" he cried suddenly, his voice unsteady from the stress of emotion that shook him, "it doesn't content me that you are merely my partner in the business—I want more than that, Rosamund, so much more!"

A Staggering Blow

His eyes were on her face as he made his passionate appeal and he saw the startled look that came into her eyes. But he went on without pause:

"Don't you realize how I've loved you, wanted you? You must have guessed, Rosamund! If only you will be the partner of my life, too——"

"Stop!" she cried. "You must not say any more—please do not say any more, Mr. Haggard."

Her words fell like an icy chill upon his eager passion.

"You mean," he said, "that you think it is too soon for me to speak after your father's death."

While he spoke his eyes caught something moving through the break in the trees under which they stood—the figures of a man and woman beyond the low boundary fence; but he hardly heeded them, so eagerly was he waiting her answer.

It came, killing at a breath his hopes and dreams with its note of utter finality.

"No," she said gently, "but because I am not free."

"Who is the man?" he demanded. "Herries?"

"I am going to marry John Herries."

The words were almost like a blow in the face to Philip Haggard. Somehow he had never seriously doubted that Rosamund would become his wife.

He had seen so much of her, as her father's partner; and, at least before the coming of John Herries, he had been confident there had been no rival he need fear.

And in a few weeks Herries had come and conquered!

"You are engaged to John Herries?" he cried harshly, unable to control his jealous anger, his face dark with passion. "You love that man—or was his money the bait?"

Mocking Laugh

Rosamund drew herself up proudly.

"You have no right to say that to me," she cried with a flash in her eyes, "and you certainly have no right to feel injured because I am going to marry a man I love."

"A man who philanders with other women, who takes other women out alone for moonlight drives in his motor—and that's not the worst that can be told about John Herries," Haggard cried passionately, his bitterness and disappointment making him lose all self-control.

"I congratulate you on your choice! Look yonder—if you don't believe me, let that convince you!"

He seized her wrist and drew her, too amazed at this sudden outburst to resist, a few paces along the path, and pointed. There, some little distance away, on the other side of the fence, John Herries was talking earnestly to "Miss Wynne."

Rosamund glanced from the two figures back to Haggard with scornful eyes.

"Do you suppose you can rouse my jealousy?" she asked, contemptuously. "You cannot. I trust the man I am going to marry!"

She gave a little mocking laugh. Philip Haggard wondered if she would laugh when he had played his trump card.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Superstitious About Weddings

THE bridegroom who carries a miniature horseshoe in his pocket will always be lucky.

The bride who dreams of fairies on the night before her wedding will be thrice blessed.

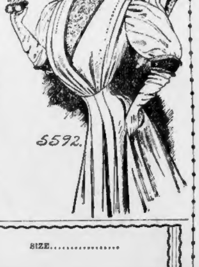
Never give a telegram to a bride or bridegroom on the way to church. It is a sure omen of evil.

Marriages on board ship are considered unlucky. If you can't be married on dry land remain single.

The finding of a spider on the wedding gown by the bride is considered a sure token of happiness to come.

Hearst's Boston American Pattern

LADIES' WAIST



No. 5,592—In the stylish bodice here shown, pale gray voile was associated with Irish lace. Deep tucks ornament the front and back. The V outline in the back, and the crossed fronts are finished by a narrow pleating of taffeta silk. The puff sleeves have deep cuffs of the lace, and fancy upturned cuffs of velvet. If preferred, the sleeves may be in elbow length. Cashmere, chiffon broadcloth, crepe meteor and taffeta silk are all adaptable. The medium size will require 2¼ yards of 44-inch materials.

No. 5,592—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents, with size, name and address to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

THURSDAY'S SHOPPING PHOTO IS IDENTIFIED

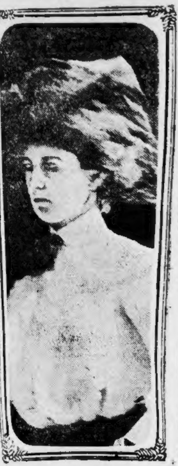
Of Two Claimants, One Withdrew; the Other Won the Award.

There were two claimants of the daily award of $2 for Thursday's snapshot of a woman shopper. One young lady was convinced it was a photo of herself, although that keynote of woman's attire—the hat—was altogether different from that shown in the photograph.

The original of the snapshot appeared later and received the award. She was Miss Mabel F. Lord of No. 32 Cottage avenue, Winthrop Beach. The camera man snapped her near Shepard, Norwell's, on Winter street, about noon, Wednesday.

When your photograph appears call and receive the award. It's yours for the asking. If you think it may be you, but are not quite sure, no harm is done by calling to have a look at the original photograph.

Meanwhile watch out for the camera man. He may catch you any morning.



The Original of This Snapshot Will Receive a Prize of $2.

BURGLARS MAKE ESCAPE IN HAIL OF BULLETS

Malden Police Scared Four From Store, but Could Not Run Fast Enough.

MALDEN, Sept. 1.—Early to-day the sleeping citizens of Malden were awakened by the sound of pistol shots. Down the street ran four men, hotly pursued by two policemen.

A few moments before Patrolman Cass had seen a light in the grocery and provision store of Abram L. Lapidus, at No. 317 Salem street. Trying the front door, he found it unlocked and saw four men run through the back door and across the field in the rear of the store.

Accompanied by Patrolman James Shea, he gave chase. Failing to overtake their men. Policeman Shea drew his revolver and fired several shots in their direction.

The men still kept on running, however, and succeeded in finally getting away from the policemen by running through a vacant house and concealing themselves.

Later Patrolman Shea went to the house of Albert Katz on Cross street, and arrested him and William Goldman on suspicion.

ARMED GUARD FOR EMPLOYER

AYER, Sept. 1.—The police station was besieged for nearly two hours yesterday by twenty-five infuriated Italians, who demanded M. W. Leahy of Littleton, a contractor, and formerly their employer, and it was finally necessary to arm the contractor with a revolver and to escort him with a similarly armed guard to a trolley car. Only threats to shoot prevented the Italians from getting at Leahy before the car started, carrying him out of town.

The trouble began when the Italians hired in Boston to work upon a bridge over the railroad tracks here discovered that they were receiving only $1.50 a day. They claimed they had been signed to work for $1.75 a day and refused to accept less.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Big Piano Bargains

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

New and Second Hand. Don't get the impression that only second hand Pianos can be had at these sales—As a matter of fact we sometimes sell the entire stock of new Pianos of some small dealer who through force of circumstances was obliged to "shut up shop," store his stock and finally let it go. We have in the course of a year hundreds of new Pianos that in the "course of events" come up in the salesrooms to be sold and always at a sacrifice.

This Is No World for Pessimists

It Is an Encouraging, Hopeful World—Despite the Misery and Injustice That Still Disgrace It

The letter which we print here is written by an able man, and a very good man. He is a thinker, well informed, earnest and genuine in his belief that the majority should govern a country.

Unfortunately, he is a pessimist; he likes to look at the gloomy side of things occasionally. And we don't mention his name—you would all know it—because we are bound to tell him that his letter is foolish.

This is the letter that he writes:

There is one thing I meant to tell you when I was in New York and forgot it. It's of no importance, but may be of some little interest to you as illustrating the way things are going. All the consular service of the United States has been told to throw down public ownership and advanced labor legislation. The reason for that is that American consuls in many foreign places where municipal ownership is known to be in operation receive now great numbers of letters from home, making inquiries as to the practical workings of the thing. They universally respond in a way that leads the inquirer to think that municipal ownership is a failure in that place. Even in cities where it has been a conspicuous success the consul will contrive to intimate some fault with it. He will say that the service is very slow, or that the cars are uncomfortable, and obscure the good features. Consuls in Switzerland add to this some disparaging comments on the initiative and referendum, and consuls in Australia and New Zealand always throw down the labor laws as well as public ownership. It is perfectly evident to any one going from place to place that these things are said by instruction or on intimation from headquarters, because all the consuls in any one country say the same things and use the same phrases. I made it my business to go to every United States consulate as I went around, and the thing was too palpable. At the first mention of municipal or State ownership the same song would begin, and you could see that it was a matter of rote. They are writing home the same sort of thing every day, in some cases to scores of correspondents. The number of inquiries sent to the Swiss consulates is enormous, and every letter writer gets an answer throwing down the whole progressive program. You can see what the effect must be at home and what it is desired to be. Also that these things do not come about by chance.

I suppose that with your beautiful optimism you still believe that something can be done in this country to stop the reactionary tide. But to persons that have not your eyes of supernatural faith it is clear that the situation is worse than it was a year ago even, and worse in the worst possible way. Because now everybody is satisfied to be fooled and daffed and robbed, and a year ago there were some persons disposed to complain. Against arbitrary rule by force and superior strength there might be some hope of a revolt, but against arbitrary rule by expert fooling there is no defence, and I renew my suggestion of a villa in Switzerland. I do not see that one country or another makes any difference. What a man wants is to feel that he is not being coerced or defrauded and that he lives in a land where there is some essence of democracy. Better think about Switzerland. R.

This man, who is an acute thinker—and a strong fighter—expresses a thought which is common in America and must be combatted.

The idea that everything is going to the dogs, that the only thing for a man to do if he wants a decent life is to go off and live in Switzerland, WHERE THEY REALLY HAVE GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE, is expressed quite often.

It reveals a sort of "Oh, what's the use!" frame of mind. And that is the frame of mind that needs to be discouraged.

The particular man whose letter we quote isn't going to live in a villa in Switzerland. He is going to stay in this country and continue fighting for just government in the future as he has in the past, in spite of all his gloomy letter talk.

But there are others genuinely discouraged, GENUINELY PESSIMISTIC, WHO FEEL THAT THE WORLD HAS GONE WRONG, AND WE WRITE FOR THEM.

In the first place, we would say to a man who talks about retiring to Switzerland for good government, "IT DOESN'T MATTER IN THE LEAST WHAT HAPPENS TO YOU AS AN INDIVIDUAL, ANYHOW. You are only one little cell in a big nation containing eighty millions of cells. Your own comfort, your own frame of mind, cannot possibly matter or affect things one way or the other.

"Your view of life is entirely wrong.

"Progress seems slow to you, AND IT MUST SEEM SLOW, since you exist for but a moment in the development of a social system that will require tens of thousands of years to attain full development."

The coral insect, working below the water at a reef that is destined to form a great island, probably gets discouraged. Probably he says to himself often, "We will never reach the top of this water. What's the use?"

And he is quite right. HE never does reach the top of the water. He builds his island down in the dark, AS WE ARE NOW BUILDING OUR CIVILIZATION IN THE DARKNESS OF MISERY AND POVERTY AND INJUSTICE.

And if the poor coral insect COULD live to reach the top, to see his island come up above the water, LIFE THERE WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR HIM—his pathetic position is the same as our own. Like the coral insect, we are building up a civilization that will be so far above us, so much better than anything that we can conceive of, THAT WE COULDN'T EVEN LIVE IN IT. There will exist eventually upon this earth a society of human beings among whom we, BECAUSE OF OUR GROSSNESS AND BRUTALITY, WOULD FIND LIFE PRACTICALLY IMPOSSIBLE.

We should feel in that new, REAL civilization as one of the old monsters of the carboniferous era would feel if you put him up at Colorado Springs and tried to make him breathe pure air. He would die.

The fact is that the kind of civilization which we have now is about the best that WE are capable of. We are building upward slowly, through the dark waters. We shall see some improvement in the future, as we have seen some in the past. The great scheme subject to which we labor is a merciful scheme, and we are allowed to see a little progress at least—although some of us imagine that we are going backward, AND NONE OF US IS CAPABLE OF REALIZING THE GREAT ULTIMATE RESULT.

To any man who feels pessimistic about America and about civilization in general we offer these statements of fact:

A great curse of humanity has been drunkenness. DRUNKENNESS HAS SYSTEMATICALLY DIMINISHED EVERYWHERE OUTSIDE OF THE SAVAGE RACES.

The greatest of all curses in this world has been ignorance. IGNORANCE HAS DIMINISHED IN THE PAST HUNDRED YEARS AMONG THE INHABITANTS OF THE WORLD TO AN EXTENT UNKNOWN IN A HUNDRED CENTURIES PAST.

The printing press has done for the brain, for education, the greatest conceivable work, a work far superior to that done for transportation by the steam engine. No man has a right to talk pessimistically when he realizes that for the first time in the world's history the man WHO CANNOT READ IS AN EXCEPTION.

1. EXCITED PARTY—Hi, Mister, help! There's a ferocious maniac in this yard trying to get out. Please hold this gate shut while I run for assistance.

MR. E. Z.—Sure I will.

2. VOICE FROM THE INSIDE—Open that gate, will yez. Open it in the name of the law.

MR. E. Z.—Dear me, how these maniacs do rave. I hope that fellow is not long in procuring assistance.

3. THE OFFICER—Maniac is it? Take that! Holdin' me in so Bill the Burglar can escape, is it? Take that!

4. THE OFFICER—Oh, tell that to the marines. You are a pal of Bill the Burglar what has just been robbin' that house, and I would a had him only you held me in the yard and gave him time to escape. Come along.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Love's Coming

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

SHE had looked for his coming as warriors come,
With the clash of arms and the bugle's call;
But he came instead with a stealthy tread,
Which she did not hear at all.

She had thought how his armor would blaze in the sun,
As he rode like a Prince to claim his bride;
In the sweet dim light of the falling night
She found him at her side.

She had dreamed how the gaze of his strange, bold eye
Would wake her heart to a sudden glow;
She found in his face the familiar grace
Of a friend she used to know.

She had dreamed how his coming would stir her soul,
As the ocean is stirred by the wild storm's strife;
He brought her the balm of a heavenly calm,
And a peace which crowned her life.

This Is No World for Pessimists

Another dreadful feature of life on earth has been poverty. Poverty we still have with us, and only too much of it. BUT POVERTY IS DIMINISHING. Men's wages within the lives of those now struggling have been doubled and quadrupled.

The long hours of work that deadened the brain and made progress impossible have been very much diminished.

No man has a right to talk pessimistically when he sees about him hundreds of thousands—MILLIONS—of working men and women earning at least a decent livelihood, able to feed their families, and, above all, FREE FROM SERVILITY, ABLE TO LOOK AN EMPLOYER IN THE FACE.

Superstition and the brutality and cruelty bred by it have been curses of humanity. SUPERSTITION STILL EXISTS, BUT IT HAS NO GOVERNING POWER AMONG US TO-DAY. There are no bonfires where human beings are burned alive, "TO THE GLORY OF GOD."

Save in shameful Russia, where "religion" is still made an excuse for murder, we have no more of the disgraceful crimes committed in the name of God upon this earth. No more we see a noble, brave and great man like More done to death because he would not give up his Catholic faith, and no longer we see such horrible sights as the dreadful martyrdom of Giordano Bruno. No man who has looked into the past, who has seen the rack, the burning fires, the wretched creature tortured with all the ingenuity that superstition could devise, has any right to talk pessimistically about the present.

As for government, it is true that we have not by any means obtained perfection. But we have at least escaped from hereditary brutality in this country and nearly everywhere else. We no longer have vile kings breeding degenerate monsters called princes, inheriting the power to cut throats by the hundreds of thousands and set one country fighting another.

We DO fight still—as the dogs fight, for we are not yet civilized—but we at least fight more or less of our own accord.

We have at this moment in the United States a rule by money. Money, which means power, is organized for its own protection, and it DOES oppress the people.

But how superior it is to the superstitious government of the heathen world in the dark times! How superior to the feudal government by disorganized armed bands! How superior to the absolute monarchy that succeeded feudalism!

It is true that the people ARE FOOLED. But while the people have their votes, and while it is within their power to control themselves and better their condition as soon as they MAKE UP THEIR MINDS TO, no man has a right to talk pessimistically.

There was a day when the prisons of the country cost a hundred times as much as all the schools and libraries put together. Think how that has changed! How splendid a thing it is when you go into an American town to see the biggest, the finest, the costliest building a FREE AMERICAN PUBLIC SCHOOL! This country has every reason to congratulate itself upon what it has achieved, AND UPON THE POSSIBILITIES BEFORE IT ESPECIALLY.

All that is required from the citizens is INDEPENDENT THOUGHT AND INDEPENDENT POLITICAL ACTION. In the past they have been too much taken up with their individual supplies of money. They have taken government too much for granted. THEY HAVE TIED THEMSELVES TO TWO PARTIES, AND ALLOWED BOTH PARTIES TO BE OWNED BY ORGANIZED MONEY. They can change that, AND THEY WILL. There is no ground for pessimism.
